Day 15/17

In this days we finish with poetry we did a poem in response to invictus which I'm not gonna lie I didn't understand the poem because the poem use very hard words. Also we start presenting our poets which mine was Walt Whitman and it was interesting search information about him because he was different of the monotonous. I really like the part that he work as a clerk in the civil war. I really like poetry because it's a good topic to learn in English and we can be creative.

In the previous class, Alanis, Fabián, and Julián talked about the poets each selected.

Today it was Daniel, Ángel, Mia and Andrea.

I attached a link to some information I found a Milton's poem "Methought I Saw My Late Espoused Saint." Curious that nobody asked about his blindness and how he was able to write his poems.

I also added one of my favorite poems by Emily Dickinson "Because I could not stop for Death." Check it out.

It was a lively discussion of which we will have more in the next class.

Have a nice weekend!

Mia Carolina Vargas 15 Apr

I moved here in 2019, after spending 12 years in the states. My main language was (and still is) English, which made it hard to adjust to going to school and taking classes. It was a huge struggle at first, but overtime I managed to pull through and did the best I can. I am grateful to past me for putting in the effort to be the best student I possibly can. Although Spaniards still treat me as, I no longer feel like an extraterrestrial. I fought for my place, I fought to understand and belong.

Like Henley, I too remain invincible, unstoppable, despite the pain

I keep an smile that you can see form a mile Staying invincible, unbeatable and unconquerable.

In my other school I got severely bullied because of my life style, my likes, because of the boys I liked and on top of that, my body. I have been struggling with my body weight for all my life and all that bullying made it worse. You may think that I should have talked to a teacher, the thing is, I did, and they always told me to ignore it. Because of the teachers doing nothing about it, I developed an aggressive reaction to all of the people who would do any type of comment towards me even if it was not malicious. When I moved school on 7th grade I still had this aggressiveness and unconsciously detected it towards my friends and they got a little scared.

During a basketball tournament, my friend twisted his ankle badly in the final game. It looked like the end of our chances. But he refused to let it beat him, he limped back onto the court, and somehow, he managed to sink the winning shot

With undying courage, and indomitable will
Undefeatable spirit, unconquerable still.

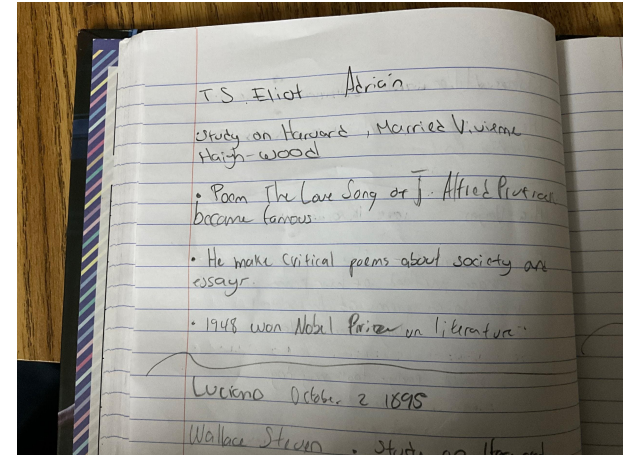

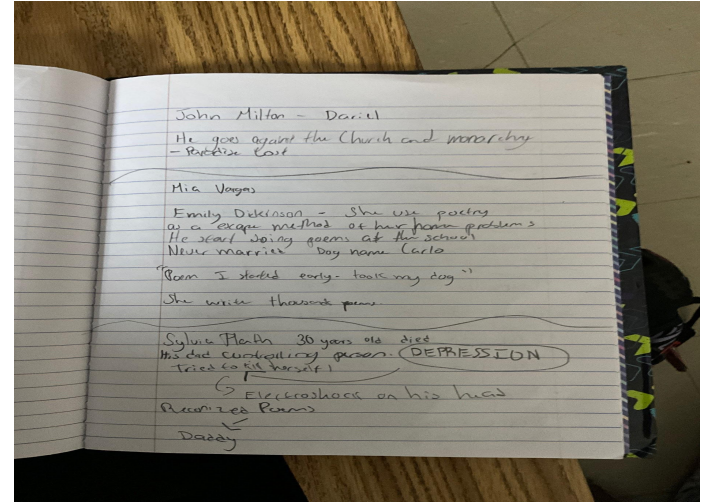

Alanis Sofía Zayas Pérez 15 Apr

One of the incidents that has affected me most was when my dad got diagnosed with cancer, it was especially harder since it was meant to be my fifteenth birthday.

Day 19/23

On these days we keep talking about poets I really like Sylvia Plath story because it was a very sad story and her poems get recognized after she died at 30 years old. I also like T.S Eliot because he did his poem or his majority of poem of how is the society like a critic.

Day 25/29

On this day we start doing our speech we saw examples of how to do it and I select how to do a basketball layup. I select this topic because even me sometimes do the layup wrong so this video can help me and my classmates on how to fix the common mistakes that we sometimes do. We also start the listening and speaking activity which it make me reminds all the good things we did in this class like the Lego Activity.

If you play basketball this is a tutorial of how to perform a basketball layup which it's one of the fundamentals moves in the game.

What do we need? Materials

Well you just need a basketball ball and a hoop.

Ok so first thing first I'm going to explain a common mistake which basically everyone does when they start.

Explain the mistake and present it.....

How to do a layup.

There's a lot of layup types but I'm not going to explain all of them I'm just going to show how to do the basic ones.

May 1/3

On this days we present our speech. I present mine which I think I did a really good work. Although it took me about 15 tries to achieve it. My mother it's really bad recording but at least she helped me and I am grateful for that because this video made me talk and laugh more with my mother in the process. Also I really like Julian video because it was like and YouTube tutorial and it was very fun. We also keep working on the Reading and Writing activity.

Conclusion

In conclusion I really like this week because the speech activity was very fun. It was a very fun week and I laughed a lot with my classmates and these will be one of my last laughs with them. I hope we continue laughing in this last week. It really was a quiet week without much work but it was a great time and it is one of my favorites.
